Here I am going to tell you some tips and tricks that you can use while formatting your paper in the APA style. So let's get started.

- Referencing has to be done at the end of your document on a separate page with the heading of 'references'.
- In-text citations are used throughout the document and their full reference and description are present in the reference's list. Do the in-text citation side by side. Do not leave it for the end because you might lose track of which source helped you in which part of your document.
- You have to double-space everything that you have typed, even the headings.
- Each and every paragraph in your essay etc. should be indented 0.5 from the margin.
- Do not use a funky font because it will not look formal at all. Rather use a formal font like Times New Roman 12pt or Arial 11pt etc.
- You have to include a page number on all the pages.
- Include a header. And a shorter version of the title is written there. Do not add the complete title name in the header.
- There should be a title page that includes header and title, author name, etc., and the content of your essay or analysis, etc. should start from the next pages. The abstract can be included too.
- Table of contents is added too after the title page.

Referencing in APA-format is not tough to write my essay. All you have to do is to keep in mind the above-mentioned points and you will be good to go. Best of luck, my friend!
